

WEBSITE PERFORMANCE REPORT

Traffic Baseline

A snapshot of the current website's traffic, captured before the new site goes live, so we can measure the growth it delivers.

THE SHORT VERSION

Your website draws about 166 visits a month, and two of every three come from Google search — people in Arkansas actively looking for shower doors, mirrors, glass railings, storefront glass, and glass repair. But the trend line matters: traffic has drifted down about 22% over the past year. The old site is slowly losing ground. The new site's first job is to stop that slide; the goal we will measure it against is growing organic search 25% past today's level. This report is the "before" line.

THE GOAL

Grow organic search traffic by 25%

112 → 140

That is about 28 more high-intent local visitors every month, roughly 336 more per year, all of them people actively searching for the work you do. Organic search is already the engine of the website. Growing it is the highest-leverage way to bring more of the right customers to the shop, and it is what the new site was built to do.

Why 25%? It is a realistic 12-month target for a site rebuild plus local-search work, not a stretch. Local rebuilds commonly lift organic 20–50% over a year; we set the floor of that range so the goal is one we beat, not chase.

THE FINDING THAT MATTERS

Traffic has been leaking for a year

193 → 151

Summer and fall 2025 averaged ~193 visits a month. Spring 2026 averaged ~151 — a drop of about 22% year-over-year. This is what an aging website looks like in the data: rankings erode a little every month as competitors publish faster, more relevant pages. Nothing dramatic happens — the phone just rings a bit less each season. The rebuild is aimed directly at reversing this, first back to the old peak, then past it.

WHAT WE MEASURED

Real numbers, not estimates

Over the 12 full months from July 2025 to June 2026, the site received 1,996 visits, an average of about 166 per month from roughly 133 unique people.

Source: your current website's own (Wix) analytics, July 2025 – June 2026 — real recorded data, not estimates. One honest caveat: the Wix source-breakdown panel did not load for four months (Aug 2025, Dec 2025, Jan 2026, Mar 2026) when we captured the data, so those months show totals only. The 67% organic share is measured across the eight months with full source detail (1,376 visits). Going forward we have installed Google Analytics 4 and Google Search Console to track the new site — those tools only collect from the day they were installed, which is why this "before" picture comes from the existing analytics.

Traffic breakdown

"Organic search" = visitors who found you through a search engine. "Direct" = typed your address or used a bookmark. "Referral / other" = links from other sites.

Totals for organic/direct/other cover the eight months with full source data (1,376 of 1,996 visits). Rows marked — are months where the source panel didn't load; the session totals are real. Jun 2025 and partial July 2026 are shown for context and excluded from the averages.*

Visits are the start of a job

About 4 ready-to-buy local searchers find you on Google every day, for free.

Traffic is not the goal by itself; it is the top of the path to an install. Someone searches, lands on your site, then calls or sends a quote request, and that becomes a job. Growing organic search widens the top of that path — and because glass work runs from a $150 repair to a five-figure commercial job, a handful of extra searchers a week is real money.

To capture next: the new site tracks quote-form submissions and phone taps, tagged with the page that produced them — so the next report can show not just how many people visit, but how many turn into leads, and whether they came from the shower page, the railing page, or a city page like Hot Springs.

Organic search is the channel worth growing

It is the largest source of traffic by far, about 67% of every visit, and it has led every single month on record. Here is why it is the channel to invest in.

- 1 The highest-intent traffic there is
Someone searching "frameless shower doors Little Rock" or "glass repair near me" is looking to hire, not browsing. That is the most valuable visitor a local shop can get.
- 2 Essentially free, and it compounds
Unlike paid ads, you do not pay per click, and the work that improves rankings keeps paying off. Ads stop when you stop paying; rankings keep working.
- 3 The modern storefront sign
After 20+ years in the metro, ranking on Google for local searches is today's version of being the first name people think of. With ~95% of visitors brand new, search is how central Arkansas discovers you.
- 4 Trusted and measurable
People trust organic results more than ads, and we can see which searches bring people in and steadily improve. It is a lever we control, not luck.

By contrast, direct traffic (31%) is mostly returning customers, builders you already work with, and word of mouth — valuable and loyal, but it does not grow the customer base on its own. Referral traffic (2%) is minimal. Organic search is the one channel that both brings in new customers and can be deliberately grown.

What drives the +25%

Every lever below is built into the new website.

01

A faster, modern site

Speed is a direct ranking factor. The new site is lean static pages instead of the heavier Wix setup it replaces.

02

Pages that match real searches

Five dedicated service pages (showers, mirrors, railings, storefronts, 24-hour repair) plus eleven city pages — the Little Rock metro plus Hot Springs, Greers Ferry, and Bentonville — give Google a strong page to rank for each search.

03

Search and local data built in

LocalBusiness, Service, and FAQ structured data, unique titles on every page, a clean sitemap, and 301 redirects that preserve the old site's link equity.

04

Clean measurement in place

GA4 and Search Console are connected, and overseas bot traffic is blocked at the edge before it can pollute the numbers — so what we report is real customers.

WHAT WE NEED FROM YOU

One thing moves the needle most

Ask happy customers for a Google review

The biggest lever on searches like "glass company near me" is your Google Business Profile in the map results, and reviews are its fuel. You sit at 3.9★ across 38 reviews — and your recent reviews are 5★; the average is being dragged by old ones. If everyone who gets an install is asked for a quick review, the rating climbs, the map ranking climbs with it, and that compounds into calls the website alone cannot buy.

Tracking the goal

TIMEFRAME	REPORTING	TOOLS
12 months from launch to hit +25% organic — with "stop the year-long slide" as the first checkpoint.	A monthly update comparing organic visits, top search terms, and leads against this baseline.	GA4 + Search Console , now installed, plus phone-tap and quote-request tracking on the new site.

WHO IS VISITING

The audience supports a local-search focus

~95% of visitors are brand new. This is a discovery business, and search is the discovery channel.	AR A local Arkansas market to win — and the new site adds pages for Hot Springs, Greers Ferry, and Bentonville to widen it.	50 / 50 Desktop and mobile split the audience almost evenly. The new site is fully responsive for both.
